5 Instructors Open Offices In McKay Hall

ONE PROFESSOR and 14 graduate assistants of the language department have moved their offices into the north third floor, McKay Building.

The temporary arrangement of offices makes room in 331-341 McKay for history department space.

THE OFFICE spaces, formerly occupied by the language department personnel and members of the psychology staff, are nearly cleared last week for the psychology department to move to the new 52 million dollar family living Complex.

Dr. Jarold L. Barker, who retired one office in the group, is 14 graduate assistants who were reassigned in the room were moved into the space once used by the head of language department.

Inspection Team Okays Engineers

Full accreditation was given the College of Physical and Engineering Sciences of the Brigham Young University for the first time by the Northwest Association of Secondary and Higher Schools.

To most of the other departmental and college additions to BYU, the recent inspection of the Northwest Association is merely to reinstate them on accredited basis. But for the newly founded College of Physical and Engineering Sciences it was a crisis which they met in fine form.

Although the engineering and science department passed the first crisis, the main one is still to come, according to Dr. Harvey Fletcher, Dean of the college.

Dr. Fletcher said that the college was examined by representatives of the Engineering Council for Professional Development last quarter.

This organization is the "police force of engineering colleges" Dr. Fletcher said. It is composed of all engineering societies in the nation who elect representatives to the council

This council is devoted to maintaining a high standard of engineering training throughout the nation, Dr. Fletcher added.

The inspection was made by Professor Fred Merryfield, Dean of Engineering at Oregon State College, Dr. Gilbert McCann, Professor of Electrical Engineering at the California Institute of Technology, Professor Ralph McMinn, Professor of Mechanical Engineering at the University of Washington, and Professor Jess Walton, Head of the Chemical Engineering Department of Oregon State College.

According to Dr Fletcher, these men have filed their report to the Engineering Council, who will decide on the basis of this report whether to accredit the Brigham Young University Physical and Engineering Science college

Reserve Library Moved To McKay

Considerable change has been made in the library system at Brigham Young University, according to Dr. Lyman Tyler, library director.

The reserve room is now located in the McKay Building, room 212 and 213, whereas, it originally used for study areas, now house the reserve rooms because of crowded conditions in the Grant Library, said Dr. Tyler.

New reading rooms have been opened in 113, 136, 137 and 263, McKay Building, according to Miss Naoma Rich, librarian.

The music library has also been moved from lower campus to the Grant Library.

Worthless, Curvy, Mean? . . . . . . You're Wanted

BYU Bibler Prototypes In Demand

by Owen Jamison
Daily Universe Writer

WORTHLESS campus bums, sultry campus queens and fangtoothed professors will be in demand during the next three weeks.

These Brigham Young University students most typical of the characters in the Bibler cartoon series, "Little Man on Campus" are due to be ferreted out and nominated for "Worthall," "Louise Lush" and "Professor Snarf."

Winners of this campus contest will be honored guests and performers at the annual Daily Universe sponsored Bibler Bounce, later this month. The all-student body sports dance is built around the cartoon series appearing in the campus newspaper.

WORTHAL is a sub-normal, but typical college man who refuses to do anything that requires him to do anything that pe Louise She is a curvy mantrap type of coed who spends little time in class but a lot in campus hangouts

Professor Snarf is a lovable instructor who knows only one letter in the alphabet, "F". He delights in uprighting sudden two hour quizzes, and enjoys snarling at shy girls who sit in the front row of his classes.

PETITIONS can be taken out to nominate students and faculty for these honorary titles from Monday until Jan. 11. These petitions must be accompanied by a reason, of 50 words or less, telling why the candidate is especially suited for one of the honorary titles. Petitions can be picked up at the Daily Universe office, 144 Student Service Center.

Voting will take place at a studentbody assembly where students are encouraged to his and box their candidates at campaign promotion. Balloting will take place in this assembly

Winners will be announced at the Bibler Bounce, Jan. 25.

Tickets for the Bounce will go on sale around the middle of January and will be in the form of press passes.

The Week in Review . . .

New Congress Dominates Week's News

by James Lee

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The curtain rose the last week on the smash opening sequences of that high-powered drama entitled "Congress, 1957."

President Eisenhower is asking the house and senate to arm him with authority to hurl U. S. military forces into action if necessary, to thwart Soviet aggression in that cockpit of tensions ,the Middle East.

Ike also wants Congressional approval of his plans for employment of economic aid to restore stability in the troubled area where free world leaders fear the germs of a third world war could breed.

THE PRESIDENT is exerting his immense personal prestige in behalf of the "Eisenhower Doctrine" for prevention of Communist exploitation of the "vacuum" created by the collapse of Anglo-French influence in the Middle East.

He propounded his proposals to Congressional chiefs of both parties at an unusually solemn conference in the White House on New Year's Day

POWERFUL Democrats, as well as legislative leaders of the President's own party, indicated support for his plan to avert war in the oil-rich region which is of vital importance to most of the world.

But closed door hearings, with such notable witnesses as ex-Presidents Harry S. Truman and Herbert Hoover, will be held before final action is taken.

Ike sent off a note to the Kremlin in reply to Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin's Nov. 17 call for a new "parley at the summit" on disarmament.

The President rejected Bulganin's suggestion for an early meeting of the heads of government of the U.S., Russia, Britain, France and India

IKE SAID THAT "deliberations within the framework of the United Nations seem most likely to produce a step forward in the highly complicated matter of disarmament." He promised that the U.S. would make proposals in the U.N.

But Mr Eisenhower did not slam the door, as saying goes, on a Big Five conclave at some time in the future. He said: "I could agree to a meeting whenever circumstances would make it seem likely to accomplish a significant result."

CONGRESS had its own tensions as it went back to work, still under slim Democratic control despite Ike's landslide reelection.

In the Senate, a group of Northern Democrats augmented by several Republicans waded into a Civil Rights fight. The coalition sought to derrive Southern senators of the filibuster device through which anti-segregation measures are talked to death.

The battle hinged on an attempt by the pro-integration forces to change the rule which now requires a full two-thirds majority, Or 64 votes, to clamp a time limit on Senate debate.

FAMILIAR FIGURES again took over the leadership posts in both the Senate and the House.

Democratic senators named Lyndon Johnson of Texas to their boss once again, while Republicans returned California's William F. Knowland to the job he has held since the death of Robert A. Taft, Senator from Ohio in 1954.

Sen. Sam Rayburn of Texas—who celebrated his 75th birthday Saturday—resumed his customary position as Speaker of the House, a billet he has filled in every Democratic controlled Congress since 1940.

SAM'S GOP opposite number and fellow bachelor, Rep. Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, was back in business as House Republican Leader.

On the senate side, the Democrats had some uneasy moments. The GOP's potential advantage seemed to be hanging in the balance when new Sen Frank J. Lausche (D-Ohio), an Eisenhower admirer, refused to go on record in advance how he would vote in the organizational election.

A Lausche vote with the Republicans would have meant a 48-48 tie, which Vice President Richard M. Nixon would have broken in favor of the GOP.

LAUSCHE, however, decided against causing his Democratic colleagues chagrin, confusion, and defeat in the Senate control election.

When the organizational chips went down, he voted with his party.

Hungarian Freedom Fighters who fled Communist oppression in the bloodstained country to seek refuge in America got good news from the White House.

The President acted on the recommendations of Vice President Nixon and directed that an indefinite number of Hungarian refugees, beyond the former ceiling of 21,500, be admitted to the U. S.

ADVANCE of his New Year's day bipartisan conference, Eisenhower gave Republican Congressional leaders a preview of his legislative aims for 1957.

The key fact to come out of the budget message is the higher cost of military security rules out any hope of individual income tax cuts this year. He indicated he is shaping a balanced federal budget of about 71 and one-half billion dollars.

That figure is up two and one-half billions from spending estimates for the fiscal year which ends next June 30. The new budget is expected to provide a surplus to apply on the national debt.

Jottings . . .

by Jean Blanchard

This is the first appearance of a column with the avowed purpose of commenting upon school activities, sounds and atmosphere and to bring news of other universities.

Complaints were heard coming from BYU students who were left in Provo for all or part of the Christmas holidays. In spite of a Get-Acquainted dance, taffy pull, caroling, ice skating, New Year's eve dances and a midnight show these students were glad to see the street and campus come alive with students returning to school. It seems that it is just too quiet when most of the students are out of town.

This column was sorry to hear of the death of Dolores Maharr, Joan Sperry and Philip Cluff, BYU students killed in a Nevada car accident on their way home for Christmas.

Here's hoping that students will think of them as they travel and do all in their power to avoid an accident.

While standing in one of the many lines at registration last Wednesday we could not help noticing how registration has been simplified over last spring quarter, the last time this writer went through the process.

Indeed, it is a blessing to have at least some idea of what you are doing and to spend less time completing the process.

Recently, several students took a tour of the brand new Smith Family Living Center and the recommendation was made that all students should take an hour of one day and walk through the building, looking through the classrooms.

A person could easily set up housekeeping and be very comfortable in this newest building on campus.

Well, by this time all classes probably have been cancelled and students should be busily studying, so Good Luck during winter quarter.

Where Is BYU . . .

Dear Editor:

As strangers pass through Provo, many of them ask the question, "Where is Brigham Young University? We know that Provo is the home of the college, but where in Provo is it?"

One day as I stood by the dilapidated old buildings on lower campus, a fellow stopped his car and asked "Is this the BYU?" This was an embarrassing question, like the traditional "Do you still beat your wife?"

I could have answered "yes and no," but I didn't. I denied it and told him how to find the upper campus.

Do you know that there are no signs at the University or streets to lead visitors to our campus? A traveler has no way of knowing where to find this imposing university.

More than one person has noticed a white building at the end of Center Street and concluded "That must be BYU!" Now that building is rather attractive, but BYU doesn't claim it yet.

How on earth can we give our university a good name when we keep it so well hidden? Most of the campus is invisible to travelers. The trees hide our beautiful buildings, and our situation so far above the city frees us from gaze as well as from smog—maybe even better.

How about some signs?

Accounting Classes Discontinue Labs

In conjunction with the vi sual aids study, laboratory pe- riods have been discontinued for students in introductory account- ing.

Assistants, either graduates or students with assistantships, will be on hand to aid students in accounting 1 and 2.

Formerly accounting classes met seven hours a week or more; five days for lecture and two to four hours for laboratory periods.

The five-day lecture schedule will continue, but there will be no laboratory meetings.

Classes are expected to take less time with the visual aids, giving time for some discussions, according to accounting depart- ment faculty.

Activity: Personality's Secret

by Vicki Soha

JOHN Marlow, senior from Blackfoot, Ida., is one of the most prominent personalities on the Brigham Young University campus.

His ready smile and congenial personality, which won him the honor of being one of the pre- ferred men of BYU coeds, is fa- miliar in many campus circles for his interests include jour- nalism, music, and medicine.

Rocky Mountain Intercolle- giate Press Assistant Vice Presi- dent in charge of yearbooks, Marlow first became interested in Banyan work when he was a sophomore.

THIS ACTIVITY was stimu- lated by his various interests in such things as art and photogra- phy. Marlow entered all these activities into one man-sized job. He was assistant editor dur- ing his sophomore year and edited an all-American Banyan in 1956. This is his second year as editor.

Marlow, a tenor, is also known on campus for his musical abil- ity. Music director of the Sixth Ward, he has sung leads in "Pagliacci" and "Rigoletto." He is now working on "Gianni Schicci" by Puccini.

Music of all kinds attracts Marlow, who has been in Opera Workshop for four years. He plays the piano a little and especially enjoys playing music by Mozart. Marlow would con- sider singing professional opera, a dream come true.

MARLOW has chosen medi- cine as his profession. After graduating from BYU, he plans to study at George Washington University and specialize in surgery. He is looking forward to study abroad and then to practicing in some large city where the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints is active.

Marlow confesses that it is quite a job to keep up with all his activities. At times it is necessary to put a value on them and sacrifice the least impor- tant, he said.

Marlow exerts more of his in- exhaustible energy in the Blue Keys and the Young Republi- cans' Club.

Cadets Await Results Of Placement Exams

Most third year Air Force ROTC Cadets are waiting for final results of physical exam- inations which will determine their future status in the Air Force program.

The examinations were given by a Hill Air Force Base med- ical team who came to the BYU campus recently to perform the task.

Those taking the exam were mostly returned missionaries who are conditionally enrolled in AFROTC. Results of the phys- icals will determine the cate- gory in which each cadet will be formally enrolled in the program.

Cat Scoring Spurt Buries Montana To Give BYU Initial Skyline Victory

by Mark Murphy

JOHNNY BENSON'S soft shot with 2:37 left and a raging second half comeback combined to give Brigham Young University a convincing 85-66 triumph over a never-say-die Montana quintet Friday night in the Skyline opener for both teams.

Free throw production accounted for 33 of the Cat points against the rough and tumble Silvertip five. This total set a new George Albert Smith fieldhouse record breaking the previous high mark of 30 held jointly by Utah and BYU.

EAGLE-EYED Clancy Waters lowered the boom, leading a determined Montana surge late in the first half to give the surprising Montanans a 42-41 lead at the intermission.

BYU jumped off to a quick lead as Tom Steinke, Cat scoring ace, slipped through for two easy lay-ins within the first minute of play.

The speedy Brighams continued to pour it on running up a comfortable 21-8 lead midway in the initial period. Most of the Cougar scoring came from the foul line as center Roy Thacker converted eight times in the first ten minutes of play.

A TWIN POINT OVATERS shocked Cougar followers with a blistering display of uncanny long shot accuracy. Grizzly captain Rudy Rhoades also had a hand in Montana's fierce comeback as the northerners steadily chewed up the once sizeable Cat lead.

With five minutes remaining in the half Montana closed the margin to six points at 33-27. Suddenly Montana went as cold as the arctic weather outside and the ambitious Grizzlies sputtered to a 42-41 lead as the teams left the floor.

COACH STAN WATTS must have had some choice words for his slumping Cougars during the rest period. BYU opened the final half with a scorching drive which produced 9 points in four minutes and left the dazed Grizzlies reeling.

Lynn Rowe, the forgotten man of the Cat quint, spearheaded the BYU drive scoring the cords for five vital and timely field goals.

Coach Watts cleared the bench with three minutes remaining and the reserves played keep away with the frustrated Montanans until the gun.

BENSON and Thacker each poured through 15 foul shots, missing by one the field house record of 16 held by Dean Parsons of Washington. Benson amassed a total of 27 points for high man honors, followed by Waters with 24.

NOTICE

During the past six months, many items of personal property have been found on the campus. Those that have been turned in to the University have been held for the owners, but there is now an accumulation of unclaimed articles which the University desires to either return to the rightful owners or otherwise dispose of.

Notice is hereby given to all students, alumni and others that all unclaimed articles now in the possession of the University will be available for inspection and delivery to the rightful owners, upon proof of ownership, at the Security Office at the south end of the Wymount Dining Hall between the hours of 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. on or before the 1st day of February, 1957.

Notice is further given that all articles held longer than six months and not properly claimed on that date may be disposed of by the University.

First Upset . . .

Farmers Squelch Redskins

SKYLINE basketball got underway with what could possibly turn out to be one of the most important upsets of the year when the Utah Aggies downed the University of Utah 68-64 Thursday night at Logan.

A late Farmer rally in the final minutes of the second period tied the score at 60-60 and forced the tilt into an overtime period.

WITH SIX minutes to play in the game the Utes held a 56-52 lead and were due a partial freeze. For the first few minutes the strategy worked, with Curt Jenson and Jerry McCleary hitting for free throws and Jenson driving in for a lay-up. The game looked iced for Utah. Then Aggie captain Ted Smith hit a two-pointer from the corner and Bob Crane stole a pass and went the length of the floor to add two more points.

FARMER Jim Haggerty added two from the charity stripe and the Redskin lead was cut to points, 60-58, with 2½ minutes to go.

After some exciting floor play Smith stole the ball, scored a cripple, and the game was deadlocked at 60-60 with a minute and a half left. The Utes held the ball successfully and in the last few seconds fired away for one last shot—no score and into an overtime period and the game.

THE FIVE minute extra period started out as the game had gone, as see-saw battle. Smith first on a lay-up to give Utags the lead, and Utah's Bob Kane canceled it with a two pointer The Farmers' Joe Lawyer added two more on a set-up for the Aggies, and Pearl Pollard closed it to 66-64 on a lay up. Then Smith, the game before wrapped it up with a layup through a battling Utah defense and that was all she wrote as far as the Utes were concerned. Final score, Aggies 68, Redskins 64.
